What is the Medically Fragile Waiver?

This waiver program provides services to individuals who have been determined to have both a medically fragile condition and a developmental disability (DD) or risk for DD. It provides support to families by providing assistance to individuals to remain being cared for in their home.

What makes a person eligible?

To qualify for services, the individual (usually a child) must meet both the medical and financial criteria. For medical eligibility, both a medically fragile condition and a developmental disability must be present and diagnosed prior to the age of 22. A person who is medically fragile needs ongoing skilled nursing care, evaluation and decision making due to a complex chronic medical condition. Someone who is medically fragile might need special equipment to live such as monitors, ventilators or feeding pumps. They might need special treatments such as dialysis or ongoing oxygen in order to maintain their health.

To meet the criteria for a developmental disability, the individual must have an intellectual disability or a related condition (such as cerebral palsy, seizure disorder, autism), and a developmental disability or risk for Developmental delay. The disability must have occurred before age 22. For additional details on eligibility go to the website:

<https://nmhealth.org/about/ddsd/pgsv/mfw/family/>

For financial eligibility, only the resources of the person with the medically fragile condition and developmental disability must meet the income guidelines for financial eligibility. Eligibility is based on the income and resources of the person applying, not the parents.
