Overview

The overarching goal of this project is to address food deserts in New Mexico tribal communities. A food desert refers to areas where there is limited access to affordable, fresh produce and other nutritious foods. This toolkit aims to reduce food deserts by providing resources to support the business success of Native American farmers and ranchers. It may also be helpful for those considering careers as farmers or ranchers.

In this toolkit, you will find multiple areas to help turn farming and ranching into a successful business, or establish yourself as an entrepreneur. These subject areas include Business Start-Up Resources, Money Management and Business Funding, and Selling. This toolkit was made possible by funds from The Aspen Institute, and compiled by Keres Consulting, Inc. with guidance from the New Mexico Department of Health.

BACKGROUND

The New Mexico Tribal Farming Toolkit provides practical, straightforward resources to New Mexico's 23 tribes, nations, and pueblos with information on how to successfully navigate the farming business industry in New Mexico. The resources provided assist New Mexico's tribal farmers and ranchers with the necessary tools to overcome the barriers to growing and selling their products. These resources equip users with the essential knowledge to improve their ability to become successful businessmen and women.

BUSINESS START-UP RESOURCES

Tribal businesses are unique in that they may interact with tribal, state, and federal stakeholders in order to be successful in their efforts. These additional challenges can often become barriers for tribal farmers, which leads to frustration and lack of success. There are numerous business resources and organizations available for those wishing to start their own business or for gaining insight to accomplished businesses. It can be helpful to learn from noteworthy businesses and take advantage of the knowledge gained from these entities.

➤ Business Plan Assistance

A Business Plan is the heart of a successful business. Knowing what to include and the numerous details involved is important to getting your business on the correct path to success. Items to incorporate in your business plan include the following:

- Executive Summary (This tells whomever is reading your plan what it is you want to achieve)
- Business Description (This section describes the industry you operate in from current trends to future opportunities)
- Market Strategies (This section should include a market analysis to allow you to effectively target the market you want to operate in)
- Competitive Analysis (This analysis will allow you to determine the strengths and weaknesses of industry competitors)
- Operations Plan (This section allows for a full description of how the business will function)

The items listed above represent a basic overview of what might be included in a business plan. You can also visit the Agricultural Marketing Resource Center for resources on business development, starting a business, creating business plans, and more. You can view their business development page here: <http://www.agmrc.org/business-development/>

➤ Steps to Starting a Business

Starting a business takes the form of a series of sequential and organized steps to ensure that everything is prepared and planned properly. The U.S. Small Business Administration¹ offers a straightforward ten-step plan to starting a business that includes:

Step 1: Write a Business Plan

Use these tools and resources to create a business plan. This written guide will help you map out how you will start and run your business successfully.

Step 2: Get Business Assistance and Training

Take advantage of free training and counseling services, from preparing a business plan and securing financing, to expanding or relocating a business.

Step 3: Choose a Business Location

Get advice on how to select a customer-friendly location and comply with zoning laws.

Step 4: Finance Your Business

Find government backed loans, venture capital and research grants to help you get started.

Step 5: Determine the Legal Structure of Your Business

Decide which form of ownership is best for you: sole proprietorship, partnership, Limited Liability Company (LLC), corporation, S corporation, nonprofit or cooperative.

Step 6: Register a Business Name \("Doing Business As"\)

Register your business name with your state government.

Learn which tax identification number you'll need to obtain from the IRS and your state revenue agency.

Step 7: Register for State and Local Taxes

Register with your state to obtain a tax identification number, workers' compensation, unemployment and disability insurance.

Step 8: Obtain Business Licenses and Permits

Get a list of federal, state and local licenses and permits required for your business.

Step 9: Understand Employer Responsibilities

Learn the legal steps you need to take to hire employees.

Step 10: Find Local Assistance

Contact your local SBA office to learn more about how SBA can help.

More Information from the SBA can be found at this website: <https://www.sba.gov/starting-business>

First Nations Development Institute offers The Business of Indian Agriculture, a curriculum designed to help farmers and ranchers succeed in managing their businesses. It covers useful topics like how to develop a business plan, how to set up bookkeeping systems, and marketing. It also covers important topics like risk management, and using credit wisely. This in-depth tool is offered in both a participant workbook and as an instructor's guide. View the curriculum here: <http://firstnations.org/knowledge-center/foods-health/biz-of-indian-ag>

Native Food Systems Resource Center offers tribal-specific guidance for producers starting an agricultural business. Specific categories NAFSI covers include: start small, seeds, traditional plants & medicines, marketing, food handling, collaboration with federal government, and financial. View their producer resources here: <http://www.nativefoodsystems.org/producers>

➤ Licensing

Business licensing is fundamental to starting a business. This is especially true in farming where food products often require specific standards to be sold to vendors. Business licensing varies according to the county, city or town in which you are operating your business. Additional factors to consider are if you are operating on Tribal Trust Land if the Tribal Entity (Tribe, Nation, or Pueblo) requires additional business licensure beyond what is required of the county in which the business is operating.

The State of New Mexico Regulation and Licensing Department offers the appropriate information for licensing within the State of New Mexico. Please visit the Department's website:

http://www.rld.state.nm.us/Apply_for_a_License_or_Permit.aspx

➤ Education and Career Selection

Below is a list of New Mexico universities for those interested in pursuing agriculture in higher education. Certificate and degree programs can help prepare the student with higher success in finding higher level job positions in the field (e.g. USDA).

New Mexico State University, Las Cruces

Associate Degree: Horticulture

New Mexico Junior College, Hobbs

Associate Degree: General agriculture

➤ Mentorship Opportunities

Whether it be from general guidance and industry specific insight, or more casually as a sounding board for ideas, mentors provide some of the greatest wealth of knowledge to entrepreneurs and start-ups. Entities like the City of Santa Fe Office of Economic Development offer many resources like counseling from business specialists. Additionally, the American Indian Chamber of Commerce of New Mexico offers numerous services for American Indians to achieve business success in New Mexico. The websites for each of these entities can be found below:

MONEY MANAGEMENT AND BUSINESS FUNDING

The means to start your business and money management are key components to supporting your young business. Along with sound money management principles, the way in which your business accepts payments and the types of payments all factor into the success your business enjoys. Information on the various types of alternative forms of payment, as well as information on funding opportunities can be found below.

➤ Payment Information

Women, Infants and Children (WIC), Electronic Benefits Transfer (EBT) and The Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP):

State and local social service agencies provide benefits to low-income community members who qualify in the form of the WIC, EBT, and SNAP Programs. Learn how to implement these Programs as a Retailer here: http://www.fns.usda.gov/sites/default/files/Retailer_Training_Guide.pdf

Double Up Food Bucks: Through the New Mexico Farmer's Association, the Double Up Food Bucks program doubles the value of federal nutrition assistance spent at participating farmers' markets, farm stands, mobile markets, grocery stores, and Community Supported Agricultures (CSA), helping people bring home more locally grown fruits and vegetables. The wins are three-fold: low-income consumers eat more healthy food, local farmers gain new customers and make more money, and more food dollars stay in the local economy.² Information for how to implement this program can be found at the following web link: www.doubleupnm.org. Please see the SELLING SECTION for a list of participating markets.

➤ Grants and Funding Opportunities

Funding for Farmers can take the form of micro loans, grants, scholarships, and other similar programs. These funding sources are available at the Federal, State, and Local level. A few of the funding programs through the United States Department of Agriculture³ are listed below:

² Double Up Food Bucks Overview, <http://www.doubleupnm.org/about/>

³ USDA Loan Program Description, http://www.usda.gov/wps/portal/usda/usdahome?navid=GRANTS_LOANS

Farm Loans

The Farm Service Agency (FSA) makes direct and guaranteed farm ownership and operating loans to family-size farmers and ranchers who cannot obtain commercial credit from a bank, Farm Credit System institution, or other lender. FSA loans can be used to purchase land, livestock, equipment, feed, seed, and supplies. Loans can also be used to construct buildings or make farm improvements.

Website: <https://www.fsa.usda.gov/programs-and-services/farm-loan-programs/index>

Beginning Farmers and Ranchers

USDA, through the Farm Service Agency, provides direct and guaranteed loans to beginning farmers and ranchers who are unable to obtain financing from commercial credit sources. Each fiscal year, the Agency targets a portion of its direct and guaranteed farm ownership (FO) and operating loan (OL) funds to beginning farmers and ranchers.

Website: <https://www.fsa.usda.gov/programs-and-services/farm-loan-programs/beginning-farmers-and-ranchers-loans/index>

Native American Tribal Loans

USDA, through the Farm Service Agency, provides multiple types of loans to help Tribes:

FSA's Indian Tribal Land Acquisition Loan Program is a valuable resource to help Tribes become owners of additional property within the reservation to advance and increase current operations, provide financial prospects for Native American Communities, increase agricultural productivity, and save farmland for future generations. Through FSA's innovative programming, American Indian and Alaska Native tribal governments have the ability to create sustainable and community-driven solutions to rural community challenges. This loan program is financed and serviced by the Farm Service Agency. Funding comes from Congressional appropriations as part of the USDA budget.

The Highly Fractionated Indian Land Loan Program helps Tribes, Tribal entities, and Tribal members alleviate the problems caused by fractionated interests on tribal lands. Through land consolidation, current and new agricultural operations can improve and expand access to USDA programs, increase agricultural productivity, and save Tribal farmland for future generations. This loan program is financed through revolving loan funds from the Agency and serviced through the approved intermediary lender, Native American Community Development Corporation Financial Services, Inc.

The Farmers Market Promotion Program \(FMPP\)

The FMPP was created through a recent amendment to the Farmer-to-Consumer Direct Marketing Act of 1976. The grants, authorized by the FMPP, are targeted to help improve and expand domestic farmers' markets, roadside stands, community-supported agriculture programs and other direct producer-to-consumer market opportunities.

ADDITIONAL RESOURCES

In addition to the resources provided in this toolkit, there are many other sources of other informative resources available. Please feel free to explore this information below and in the following table.

➤ First Nations Development Institute

First Nations Development Institute (FNDI) improves economic conditions for Native Americans through technical assistance & training, advocacy & policy, and direct financial grants in five key areas:

- Achieving Native Financial Empowerment
- Investing in Native Youth
- Strengthening Tribal & Community Institutions
- Advancing Household & Community Asset-Building Strategies
- Nourishing Native Foods & Health

First Nations Development Institute recognizes that accessing healthy food is a challenge for many Native American children and families. Without access to healthy food, a nutritious diet and good health are out of reach. To increase access to healthy food, First Nations support tribes and Native communities as they build sustainable food systems that improve health, strengthen food security and increase the control over Native agriculture and food systems. First Nations provides this assistance in the form of financial and technical support, including training materials, to projects that address agriculture and food sectors in Native communities.

First Nations also undertakes research projects that build the knowledge and understanding of Native agriculture and food systems issues. They also inform Native communities about innovative ideas and best practices. First Nations also participates in policy forums that help develop legislative and regulatory initiatives within this sector. First Nations supports a regional and national network of Native food sector and related organizations.

Website: <http://firstnations.org/>

➤ Native Food Systems Resource Center

The Native Food Systems Resource Center (NAFSI) is an initiative of First Nations Development Institute. An extension of First Nation's Native Agriculture and Food Systems Initiative, the Native Food Systems Resource Center offers resources for communities, producers, and consumers in regards to food sovereignty.

Some of the resources NAFSI has to offer include:

- Engaging your community
- Farm to school
- Collaboration with federal government
- Food handling/safety
- Seed saving
- Marketing and financial guidance

Website: <http://www.nativefoodsystems.org/>

➤ Farm to Table New Mexico

Farm to Table enhances marketing opportunities for farmers, encourages family farming, farmers' markets and the preservation of agricultural traditions, informs public policy, and furthers understanding of the links between farming, food, health and local economies.

Some of the resources NAFSI has to offer include:

- Engaging your community
- Farm to school
- Collaboration with federal government
- Food handling/safety
- Seed saving
- Marketing and financial guidance

Farm to Table offers various programs to get your produce from the field to the consumer including farm to school, farm to cafeteria, farm to restaurant, etc. Visit Farm to Table's Programs tab on the website for additional New Mexico resources for farmers and ranchers.

Website: <http://www.farmtotablenm.org/>

➤ NMSU Cooperative Extension Service

NMSU Cooperative Extension Service provides "expert answers for everyday questions" in areas including: economic development; energy and water; farm and ranch; health and family wellbeing, yard and garden; natural resources; 4-H youth development and multimedia video and apps. Click here to locate your county extension office.

Indian Livestock Days

Indian Livestock Days began in the 1970's and was initially called All Indian Livestock School. It was discontinued in 1978 and reestablished in 1985, at the request of tribal livestock producers. Originally the event was held in April and hosted on the main NMSU campus in Las Cruces. In 1996, the location was moved around the four-corners area to make it easier for clientele to attend the event. This event has grown from approximately 65 attendees in 1996, to 245 attendees in 2015. New Mexico Indian Livestock Days is now an annual event held in May, conducted by NMSU Cooperative Extension Service.

➤ Intertribal Technical Assistance Centers through the Intertribal Agriculture Council

USDA deployed the Intertribal Technical Assistance Network (Network) to ensure Tribal governments, communities, and individuals receive technical assistance to improve their access to USDA programs and services. The Network helps USDA deliver its programs and services to farmers and ranchers who are focusing on providing local and traditional food to tribal members and improving the market access for tribally-produced foods. The Network supports members of tribes across the United States, potentially benefitting 55 million acres of reservation lands and the communities located on those lands.

Website: <http://www.indianaglink.com/our-programs/technical-assistance-program/>

➤ Johns Hopkins Feast for the Future

The Feast for the Future Program is an innovative and holistic model program that ensures American Indian children and communities have access to healthy and nutritious foods. Feast for the Future promotes Native communities' capacity to reintroduce healthy indigenous foods and agriculture.

The program was developed and launched in 2010 in partnership with three Native communities located in the southwestern United States. The development, implementation and evaluation of Feast for the Future was guided by a Community Advisory Board in each participating community. A rigorous evaluation was conducted to assess the program impact and refine all program materials. The Feast for the Future Program components are now packaged and available to interested tribal communities across the nation through the replication toolkit on the Johns Hopkins website.

Website: <http://caih.jhu.edu/programs/feast-for-the-future/>

➤ Natural Resources Conservation Service

The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is a program within the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). NRCS provides America's farmers and ranchers with financial and technical assistance to voluntarily put conservation on the ground, not only helping the environment but agricultural operations too. NRCS operates at a national level, but has local service centers to better serve NM farmers and ranchers. Offered programs include farm bill, financial assistance, easements, landscape initiatives, and landscape planning.

The following resource is a New Mexico-specific grazing brochure to equip NM ranchers with grazing tips and techniques. By reviewing the brochure on a small acreage grazing, the owner can properly care for his or her animal(s) by understanding feed requirements, conserving soil, protecting plant condition and ecological diversity, maintaining or improving wildlife habitat, and increasing property values. View the grazing document here:
